

EcoSure Public Health Outbreak Services

A public health scare can paralyze your staff, frighten your customers and jeopardize your business. But proactive preparation can help you maintain your business momentum and minimize your overall risk when or if the crisis occurs.

EcoSure's Public Health Outbreak Services can help: From understanding your current risk profile, to modifying your team's risky behaviors, to enhancing your ability to respond quickly and effectively – EcoSure is ready to help you reduce your business risk.

Current Behavior Assessment

- We will conduct a thorough one to two hour review of your team's behaviors, procedures and practices – both in the front and back of the house – and how those may increase your risk profile.

Focused Education

- EcoSure's onsite training can help raise your team's knowledge level by understanding the situation, good health habits and how germ transmission and spread occurs in the food service environment. Training then shifts to modifying your team's behaviors to minimize the risk of contamination.

Response Preparedness

- A top-down review of your team's readiness to respond to the next public health scare – or crisis. From communication plans to having the right types of products on hand to knowing how to use them most effectively.
